Restorative Justice Program

www.secasa.com.au

The South Eastern Centre Against Sexual Assault (SECASA) provides sexual assault and family violence services in Victoria within the Mornington Peninsula, City of Frankston, Bayside, Port Phillip, Stonnington, Glen Eira and Kingston local government areas. We also work in the Cities of Greater Dandenong, Casey and Cardinia growth corridor.

What is restorative justice?

Restorative justice helps people who have been sexually or physically assaulted to communicate with the other people involved, about the harm that has been caused. The police and courts will not usually be involved.

If you have been affected by sexual or physical assault, and would like to talk to the offender, family members or anyone else involved, restorative justice may be able to help.

You can have a face-to-face meeting, or a different type of communication. A SECASA facilitator will help with the process.

Interested in the program?

Please ask your SECASA counsellor for more information. You will be asked to complete a Restorative Justice Intake Form. Your counsellor will help you to identify:

- The harm that is to be addressed
- The person responsible for causing the harm
- Other people you would like to be involved
- The type of communication to be used
- The outcomes you want
